AN APPRECIATION

We of the Class of 1940 wish to dedicate our yearbook to the Faculty of Wakefield High School. Because of their understanding, friendly attitude we have not found these four years so very difficult. Their guidance and advice have been available for any students who needed assistance. Not only have our teachers aided us in regular school work, but they have served us as patrons and patronesses for school dances and similar extra-curricular activities. Several pupils have made lasting friendships with their favorite teachers. Since the Faculty has been to a great degree responsible for our having happy high school years, we have chosen this means of showing our appreciation.

BARBARA W. TEDFORD, '40

OUR GRATITUDE TO OUR FACULTY

From the first day of our four years at Wakefield High School, we have been under the capable supervision of the teachers. They have helped us overcome the newness of the schedule until—after a few weeks—we were well instructed as to our responsibilities. Without their help and ability to keep order, the first days might have been an unconquerable ordeal. Through their experience we have been aided in determining our life work.

We could continue to tell of the many things our teachers have done for us, but it would take innumerable words, words which would still be inadequate. We leave Wakefield High School and the best teachers anywhere on earth to go out into the world with happy outlooks for the future and the memory of four pleasant years.

BARBARA WOODWARD, '40

A TRIBUTE TO OUR TEACHERS

Before our final exit from Wakefield High School, we, the Class of 1940, wish to thank our teachers for their patience and endurance in supplying us with the knowledge we now possess. It has been not an easy task to teach us, as we are not all model pupils; and sometimes the teachers must have felt that their untiring efforts were futile. Due to perseverance and integrity on their part, we pupils have become much wiser and more intelligent in the past four years. The deep and sincere gratitude we feel for our faculty can be expressed inadequately in words but effectively in action. That we may ever reflect credit upon our instructors is our parting wish.

BETTY GALVIN, '40

RELATION OF YOUTH TO FUTURE AMERICA

As we approach the close of our high school years, we find ourselves confronted by a great challenge—that of guiding the future of our country. We, the graduating class of the Wakefield High School, are to be the men and women of tomorrow. It is in our hands that the future destiny of America lies.

It is up to us, as individuals, to determine whether or not we can meet this great challenge set before us. If we have the determination and will to succeed, there is no doubt but that we shall be victorious. We may make mistakes on the way, but experience is the best teacher. So, if we profit by our own blunders and by those of others, we shall successfully accomplish our task.

It is up to youth to guide the future of our country so that it will be a safe and glorified one. We can do what we want to do if we have the desire and determination to keep struggling until we reach our goal, no matter how long and steep the road becomes. Stick to it, and you will be rewarded by success in the end. Remember: HE CONQUERS WHO ENDURES.

LORRAINE MURPHY, '40

WAR AND RECONSTRUCTION — A PROBLEM FOR AMERICAN YOUTH

Today American youth is facing one of the most serious problems that ever confronted Man. The time is not far off when we shall have to build a new world to replace this one now consumed by war and forces of destruction. Not since the Glacial Age, when the human race was first threatened by extinction, or the time when the democratic Greeks stemmed the advance of Persian despotism, has the collapse of civilization seemed to be so imminent.

These are awesome words, yet we show a complete ignorance of the real problems, and await only the coming of spring to unleash the dogs of war. We are like bloodthirsty Roman spectators of yore, impatiently waiting for two gladiators to begin their rain of deadly blows.

But there is another evil, greater than this ignorance and fatal to the proposition of peaceful reconstruction; that is our entrance into the conflict. At the present moment our sentiments do not tend in this direction, but let us not entertain any doubt that they will remain as such when Europe lies in shambles, and our favorite side calls piteously for our help. Then will come the real test of democracy—to withstand the hysterical, false propaganda and to analyze objectively, justly, humanely, the best methods for bringing about peace and for rebuilding the shattered culture of Europe. Otherwise we shall be engulfed in this mad maelstrom of passion, hate, and issueless issues. To America the shock will be so fatal to our democracy that the powers of reaction will overthrow it, and we will struggle uselessly in the quagmire of barbaric feudalism.

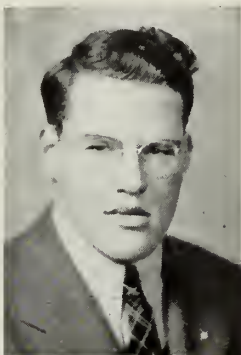

Nevertheless we should not go to the other extreme, and like ostriches, bury our heads in the sands of isolationism. This country cannot remain happy and prosperous while the rest of the world is in the death throes of Mars. We are too closely allied with the aftermath of Europe's conflict to pursue a laissez-faire foreign policy. Our path lies in getting Europe on its feet, and rejuvenating it according to the theories of democracy. Or else that continent, overwhelmed by their Armageddon, ravaged by the triumphant Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, will bloodily turn back the clock of civilization five hundred years, and medieval times will again strike the dominating hour of its political life.

However, we already have an advantage to rise above our problem and master it. It is our faith in democracy. Do not think that it was principally the abundant natural resource or private capital that built this great land. No! No! It is the spirit of democracy, of optimism, of the theory, "a man's a man for a' that." Russia with a natural wealth greater than ours has not remotely approached the American standard of living.

Yet we cannot expect our liberty to remain unimpaired unless we zealously guard any infringement of it. In these abnormal times we must take greater precaution to safeguard our civil rights. It is fallacious to restrict them in the name of liberty, but that is exactly the tendency today. This is a sign of a growing fear—hysteria. Its danger lies in the fact that it might serve as a prelude for more drastic action. For that reason it is imperative that we remain neutral and continue the democratic system. Then, we as a nation shall radiate that characteristic of Lincoln, "with malice toward none, with charity for all," and American youth will have made its first important step towards the solution of its immense problem.

Rather quiet but rather nice is Helen. She thinks she wants to become a secretary. Secretarial work will be easy for her to find because of her expert typewriting. Here's hoping, Helen!

DOROTHY ALICE ASH

"Dot"

Business School

"Her voice was ever soft and gentle."

Basketball (1); Usher and Candy Committee (4).

"Dot," more unassuming than most, is well liked by her classmates. Her pleasant smile and her friendly manner perhaps account for her popularity. "Dot" is planning to attend a business school, and we feel sure that with her quiet perseverance, she will make a success of a commercial career.

HEDLEY ASH

"Hed"

General Electric

"Not afraid of work but not in sympathy with it."

Furniture Committee (4).

"Hed" is a popular boy from Lynnfield. Despite his apparent diffidence, he has acquired many friends. Judging from his work in physics and chemistry, he surely will become an expert some day.

JAMES CERRETANI

"Jim"

Undecided

"Good humor only teaches charm to last."

"Jim," like his brother, is a quiet boy who spends much of his time with outside interests. His sunny smile brightens every classroom, and we know it will carry him into a successful future.

EDWARD CHIRISFIELD

"Clete"

Commercial Pilot

"A man of strength."

"Clete" came to us from the Franklin School. He has made a name for himself in his English class by his long and educational talks. "Clete" plans to train for commercial aviation, and it probably will not be many years before we hear of his making transcontinental flights.

JOHN COLANNINO

"Chic"

Salesman

"Service with a smile."

"Chic" came to us from the Lincoln School, and has been rather quiet during his four years at Wakefield High. He is an ambitious lad and has many outside interests. "They say" he takes frequent trips to Reading. Is it business?

ARTHUR DECECCA

"Giant"

Undecided

"Size does not make the man."

Arthur has shown a lot of energy for a little fellow. He has made many new acquaintances at Wakefield High School, several of whom have become close friends.

STASIA KROL

Secretarial School

"Still waters run deep."

Stasia is a quiet, agreeable young lady. She is a pretty girl with a pleasing smile and is always ready to help someone. She is such a capable typist that we are sure she will be a successful secretary. Happiness to you always, Stasia.

JOHN THIBODEAU

Lincoln Aviation School

"Doc"

"They say he is a very good scholar."

"Doc" came to us from the South School in Peabody during our junior year. He made many friends on the football field in the fall of our senior year and later became well known to us by his antics in English (124) and his persistent inquiries in physics. Best of luck, John, and don't "crack-up" too soon!

OCTAVIA ZWICKER

Business College

"Teddy"

"With a smile and a song all the day long."

Archery (1); Basketball (2, 3); Baseball (1); Tennis (2, 3).

"Teddy" has always been noticed for her unlimited supply of energy, for she is one of those persons who are always planning practical jokes, and more than once we have caught a mischievous look in her eyes. Whatever business school "Teddy" attends will be sure to benefit by her presence. Best wishes for the future, "Teddy"!

THE INTER NOS CLUB: 1939-1940

Of the twelve successful years of the Inter Nos Club of Wakefield High, the 1939-1940 season has proved to be one of the most enjoyable. Much of our success was due to the efforts of Miss Gilmore, who gave us her help and guidance throughout the year.

At our October meeting, which was open to all the girls, we enjoyed an interesting talk on "Personality" by Dean Albert from the Acadame Moderne. This meeting was in charge of the Board of Directors. The November meeting was under the direction of President Jeanne Hurton, and Vice President Nancy Davis, and was held at the Princess Theatre, where the motion picture "Beau Geste" was shown. Under the direction of our Secretaries, Betty True and Doris Oliver, we entertained the Hi-Y Club at our December meeting with Mayor Childs of Newton, as the speaker. In January, Mr. Danglemeyer from the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company spoke on "Training to be a Telephone Operator." This meeting was in the able hands of our Junior Directors. Our Valentine Tea was held at our February meeting, and the Junior Directors presided. In March, our mothers were invited to our meeting to hear Miss Wessman from Filene's speak. Tea and a buffet lunch were served. The highlight of the season was the Annual Tea Dance, which was held on April 10, and was in the able hands of the Board. Our last meeting was held on May 22, when all reports were read and officers for next year elected. So ended another successful year of the Inter Nos Club of Wakefield High School.

Hi-Y Club: 1939-1940

Under the excellent leadership of President Edward Bachelder, Vice President John Brockbank, Treasurer Stetson Bachelder, and Secretary Gardner Burke, the Hi-Y Club has carried out successfully many special projects in the year. Many instructive programs have been held, all designed to promote the noble purpose of the Hi-Y. The events and special projects of the club for the year included the Football Supper, the Hi-Y Christmas Dance, Fathers' Night, Mothers' Night, Girl Friends' Night, Faculty Night, Dish Duty at the "Y," Leadership of Boys' Groups, Children's Christmas Party, Food Sale, and contributions to Boy Scouts, as well as other worthy causes. A delegation was also sent to the Older Boys' Conference in Wakefield.

The members are especially grateful for the co-operation and sincere interest of Mr. Lindsay, the director of boys' activities at the Wakefield Y. M. C. A.

The Library Service Club, under the able direction of Miss Sheldon, successfully functioned this year. The club is made up of pupils who are interested in library work. Each period, one or two members have charge of the library management. This club has been a great aid in the library, and it has also introduced the members to a worthwhile profession. Incidentally, the club members have aided the librarian in fulfilling the demands of the student body.

STUDENT COUNCIL

On March 12, 1940, a group of sophomores, juniors, and seniors formed the Student Council. Morris Stoddard was elected president, and Barbara Tedford was chosen as secretary. Miss Eleanor Abbott and Mr. Edgar Fisher were appointed as faculty advisers.

THE FOCUS CLUB

The newly-formed camera club, under the supervision of Mr. Galiop, was established during the first part of February, 1940. At the meetings of the organization, pictures have been shown, and photography has been discussed.

Officers of the club are Donald Chisholm, President; Joseph Johnson, Treasurer; and William Thistle, Purchasing Agent. The other eight members, Norman Whiton, Carl Elliot, Clayton Atchison, and Donald Brown, offer constructive suggestions for practical projects. At present the club is sponsoring a feature for the yearbook—candid camera shots. Already on the road to success, the club will soon become one of the popular school units.

THE SENIOR PLAY

On December 8 and 9, 1939, the Class of 1940 presented "Skidding" in the high school auditorium. Two very large audiences enjoyed this comedy of three acts by Aurania Rouverol. Under the excellent direction of Miss Barbara Gerry, a true portrayal of a typical American family was depicted.

Every member of the cast was convincing in his part and the laughter and comments of both audiences proved the play a success.

THE GILBERT AND SULLIVAN CLUB

Last fall, a group of boys and girls under the capable direction of Miss Vivian Dix, Supervisor of Music, formed the Gilbert and Sullivan Club with their goal being the presentation of the operetta The Mikado early in May.

The presentation of such an operetta involved a great deal of work, but the gay tunes and the engaging wit made the learning pleasant. An excellent cast was chosen. There were many voices of fine timber and range, and much unsuspected dramatic ability was developed. The production of The Mikado during Music Week proved to be a worthy second to Trial By Jury given two years ago as the first Gilbert and Sullivan ever to be presented in the Wakefield High School.

THE MIKADO OR THE TOWN OF TITIPU Dramatis Personae

The Mikado	Herbert Allyn
Nanki-Poo, His son, disguised as wandering minstrel	Robert Parker
Ko-Ko, Lord High Executioner	Alan Bill
Poo-Bah, Lord High Everything Else	Albert Doucette
Pish-Tush, a Noble Lord	Robert Waters
Yum-Yum	Jeannette Robbins
Pitti-Sing	Ruth Monegan
Peep-Bo	Olive Vidito
Katisha, Older Lady of the Court	Iva Andrews

This travesty, The Mikado, has been the greatest favorite of comic opera since its production in 1885. It was in this year that The Mikado began the first of its 672 consecutive performances at the Savoy Theatre in London. Fifty-five years is a long time and many have been the changes. Various writers select this or that reason for the perpetual enjoyment of these Savoy operas. An excerpt from a letter written by the poet Longfellow after attending an early performance in London is still apropos:

"Satire, farce, sarcasm, and other nonsense elbow each other in admired confusion and leave an impression on the hearer's mind such as is produced by an incomprehensible dream from which one wakes in laughter, only to be unable to explain any mirth-provoking incident even to himself. The fun of the whole thing lies in the remarkable turn of song, speech, and action."

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB: 1939-1940

This school year has proved to be a very successful one for the Girls' Glee Club. Not only has this efficient group contributed generously to the musical activities of Wakefield High School, but also it has sung for civic events. Especially praised was its part in the program of Christmas Carols sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce.

The final concert was given during Music Week in May when The Mikado was effectively produced under the direction of Miss Vivian Dix, Supervisor of Music in Wakefield.

The officers of the club are the following:

This year the club has combined the junior and senior groups into one large organization. Under the competent direction of Mr. Arthur Fulton, popular member of the faculty, the boys have given several programs. They combined with the Girls' Glee Club for the Christmas broadcast sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. They also presented a Christmas program at the Y. M. C. A., for which much praise was received. In March, they sang for the Greenwood Women's Club, and in April, they appeared with the band and the orchestra in another public performance. WAKEFIELD HIGH SCHOOL BAND

The Wakefield High School Senior Band, under the direction of Mr. Joseph Fanck, is one of the leading musical organizations in our school. It has made an excellent appearance at the football games played on our own gridiron, and also at the out-of-town games in Swampscott, Watertown, and Reading. The snappy red and white uniforms also brightened the auditorium at the memorable Faculty Basketball Game. Other activities during the school year included the Armistice Day Parade, Elks' Americanization Night, Taxpayers' Association, the Annual Concert in April, the Music Festival in May, and the Memorial Day Parade. At each appearance we have been proud to say, "That's the Wakefield High School Senior Band!"

WAKEFIELD HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA — 1939-1940

The Wakefield High School Orchestra has enjoyed a profitable season under its director, Mr. Joseph Fanck. The members have liked working with Mr. Fanck and appreciate all the time and effort he has willingly given to the organization. In addition to playing for the Senior Play, the orchestra performed at the entertainment given by the Quannapowitt Players for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. The orchestra also contributed to the program of Christmas music which was broadcast throughout the business section of Wakefield during the holidays. The annual concert was a great success, and the appearance of the orchestra at a school assembly was another source of pleasure. In the presentation of The Mikado, the youthful musicians were cordially received. Several talented seniors deserve a word of praise for their loyalty and support of the orchestra for the past four years: Carol White, Patricia Burditt, Alice Woodhull, Ruth Peterson, Jean Mosher and Jane Lang.

After much co-operation on the part of the student-body and with the consent of Mr. Peterson, a school newspaper was started under the name of the Lookout. Representatives from all four classes were chosen, and the first edition was compiled, put to press, and sold at the price of five cents a copy on November 3, 1939. This is the first school paper since 1937, and it has proved to be a success. Hard work, co-operation, and an interest in school activities, have helped to sell the paper. The class of 1940 has certainly enjoyed both reading and writing the Lookout.

With the installation of the new single session, the number soon increased, the freshmen topping the list with fifty enthusiastic beginners. Practice was held three times a week under the able supervision of Miss Nichols. The girls practiced shooting, guarding, pivoting, executed plays of their own, and soon mastered the techniques of efficient teamwork. The seniors having lost a hard-fought game to Reading last year by three points, practiced diligently in order to defeat the Reading girls March 8. They were again victorious in the Stoneham game on March 13.

The interclass games were held in the high school gymnasium on March 1. The seniors conquered again, winning the championship for the second consecutive year by defeating the juniors 26-7, and the sophomores 36-4. The juniors shut out the freshmen 18-0, while the sophomores vanquished the freshmen 12-6.

The line-ups for the interclass games were as follows:

BOYS' BASKETBALL: 1940

The Wakefield High School basketball team of 1940, though not so successful as the champion team of the previous year, caused much anxiety in the ranks of the league leaders with the constant threat of upsetting them.

After getting off to an uncertain start by defeating the second-place Stoneham hoopsters, the "green demons" dropped three straight before they sparked into action and caused the undefeated Reading five to extend themselves to the limit in order to win. A loss—the fifth straight to Lexington—ended the first round of the league race for the locals.

The second round displayed a team which scored decisive victories over Melrose, Winchester, Concord, and Lexington, losing to Belmont, Stoneham, and Reading by a very small margin.

The team also participated in two post-season games, playing the Y. M. C. A. Crusaders for the football sweater fund, and the Ozark Hill Billies, a professional girls' team.

The veteran lettermen from last year were Wayne Schumann and Co-captains Dominic Martino and John Conroy. The other members of the first team were Gardner Burke, Morris Stoddard, Patsy Carisella, Steve Sardella, Larry Bartnick and Paul Lazzaro.

GIRLS' FIELD HOCKEY: 1939-1940

The fall means field hockey to the sports-minded girl at Wakefield. Within a few days after the opening of school, field hockey began with only ten girls, but the number increased rapidly. November brought the first game with Stoneham, which proved to be both successful and exciting as the girls displayed proficiency in stick-work and team play, the result of two months' efficient instruction by Miss Nichols, the girls' competent physical education teacher. While the first team tied Stoneham 1-1, the second team lost 1-0, but shows promise for next year. We wish them the best of success.

BOYS' HOCKEY: 1939-1940

During the school year, the Wakefield High School hockey team completed a longer and more difficult schedule than ever before attempted. Since the team had the advantage of good weather, a schedule of eleven games was played, the team winning three, losing four, and tying four.

The season opened with victories over Reading and the Essex "Aggies." Two close decisions were then dropped to Needham and Lexington. Our Medford game resulted in a tie, but in a return game, Medford won. A trip to St. John's Prep resulted in a victory, but in a return game, the result was a tie. A game with Malden also ended in a tie, and the season closed when the team dropped games to the strong Stoneham and Malden sextets.

Much credit for the team's success is due to Coach Charles Kirk. "Red" Jackman, the senior manager, ably assisted by "Ed" Seero, arranged the schedule.

The team was ably led by Co-captains "Jupe" Thresher and "Mike" Conway. The high scorer was "Bob" Amirault.

FOOTBALL: 1939

During the past football season, our Alma Mater had a very scrappy team. Most of the opponents exceeded our stalwart men in size; although our husky gridiron heroes lacked nothing in determination.

Ten games were played, of which three were victories, and six were lost to such teams as Malden, Somerville, and Melrose. Although our boys lost a few of these games, Wakefield scored a total of seventy-three points to a total of sixty-three points scored against them.

One of the best games of the year was played against Rindge Tech—one of the largest and best teams in the state. Wakefield came through with flying colors and defeated her opponents by a score of 14-0.

Captain Bliss, our two-hundred-pound tackle, and "Ed" Seero, our able quarterback, were mentioned for All-Scholastic. A certain sports writer for one of the Boston newspapers said, "I only wish every boy on the Wakefield football team could be All-Scholastic, because they all deserve it."

"Jupe" Thresher, "Pidgy" DeRoche, "Dicker" McGrail, Leo Amirault, Dante Volpe, "Minic" Martino, "Gootsie" Roberto, and "Tommy" Hurton are the lettermen graduating in 1940. The undergraduate lettermen are John Conroy, "Phil" Herron, "Eddie" Seero, and next season's Co-captains, George Morgan and "Jimmy" Landrigan.

These boys played hard and deserve much credit for their ability, good sportsmanship, and efficient teamwork.

CROSS COUNTRY: 1939-40

This fall our cross country team has not fared as well as usual. Because many players were lost by graduation, we had left only Captain Fitzpatrick as a consistent performer. Although captained by this efficient runner and assisted ably by Malcolm Corbett, Irving Wells, James Bradstreet, Frank Reid, and Merritt Long, we defeated only Stoneham. However, the season was short, and it is expected that in the spring, the track team will make up for this season.

THE HATS THAT MOTHER WORE

Mother had a little hat;
'Twas cute as cute could be,
But every time she put it on
Papa would yell, "Whoopee!"

So Mother bought another hat
To satisfy Papa,
And every time she put that on
He shouted, "Hot Cha Cha!"

Now Mother never wears a hat
This is the reason why:
She'd rather catch a cold than lose
Papa, her "sweetie-pie."

SYLVIA'S MOTTO

Yes, just five months ago, Sylvia Cole had been graduated from the Edson Business School. Then she was a happy girl with no cares on her beautiful shoulders, no unpleasant memories to run through her mind.

Sylvia never realized so much could happen within five months. Her mother's death left Sylvia with the responsibility for caring for a large home and an infant brother, but Sylvia little minded this burden, which was lightened by her father's cheerful manner and kindliness.

Despite her father's happy spirit, he was extremely grieved by the death of his wife. He rapidly lost his health and was confined to his bed.

Now what was Sylvia to do! Included with her household duties and the care necessary for her baby brother was the attention she had to give her father. How was she going to manage? How were these three going to live, with her father out of a job, no money whatever coming in? No, indeed, they could not depend upon the government for support.

The next day, Sylvia was cleaning out a closet and found—yes, the yearbook in which were so many cherished memories of her high school days; and there was her picture on the very first page of the book. But why shouldn't it be? She was president of her class!

Sylvia soon became lost in the memories which the book held. Turning the pages, she found many verses, pictures, and stories which brought tears to her eyes or laughter to her lips as she recalled some humorous incident.

There! There was one of the write-ups she had put in the book—Helen Hathaway. Why, of course, she was the girl who, with a wad of gum behind her teeth, could speak so distinctly that one would never suspect that gum was hidden in her mouth.

Oh, what's this? Yes! Prettiest girl—class diplomat—class cut—what—what's this, mostly likely to succeed—Syl—Sylvia Cole! Sylvia's heart almost stopped palpitating!

On the next page was written in large dark letters, "He conquers who endures."—the class motto!

"Most likely to succeed." "He conquers who endures." These two thoughts set Sylvia's mind in a whirl. First one thought, then another, then another, and another. Yes, she would prove that she was "likely to succeed." She would succeed! She would conquer all this hateful work of Fate. She would conquer it. She would go to the city—spend the whole day—get a neighbor to take care of the house, of her father, of her little brother. She would test her luck at getting an office position. Oh, she knew jobs were scarce, but she would pray every morning, every night—spend every day from early morning to dinner time looking for a position! "He conquers who endures!" But could Sylvia endure all this hardship?

The next day, she awakened quite early. She had slept little. Her cheeks were flushed, and her eyes were bright from her anticipation of this great day.

Mrs. Frisby, Sylvia's best-liked neighbor, came over at eight in the morning to take over the duties which Sylvia politely assigned her.

In the meantime, Sylvia bade her father goodbye and set out for the test of her ability and tact.

It seemed hours to Sylvia before she finally arrived home, very much fatigued. No luck today. But Sylvia did not give up hope. Hadn't she had the training of four years of high school and two years at Edson's Business School, the best school in the East?

Another day went by. Still another and another, finally a week passed. Sylvia lost all hope of finding a position. Her small savings had diminished tremendously.

Suddenly her attention was held by a help-wanted advertisement hanging on the door of a dilapidated old building! The advertisement called for a secretary-stenographer. Oh, if only she could secure this position. But this building didn't look like a reputable place of business. Should she go in? Should she take a chance?!!

Some powerful force seemed to be pushing, or forcing her into the building. Why this building was as clean, yes, even cleaner, than some she had been in. It was quite modern inside.

That night she went home probably the happiest girl in her neighborhood; she had secured the position as secretary-stenographer in the Walton Candy Company's main office.

Excitedly, she told the great news to her father, who also was overjoyed.

Sylvia felt like shouting, like dancing, like singing. Oh, how could she release herself from this inferno of emotion. Was it not prayer, persistence, and her will to endure that buoyed her spirits up to where they were at the present moment?

At her bedside that night, she knelt and thanked God for the assistance He had given her, and for finding her yearbook. She fell asleep murmuring her class motto, the motto that was to be hers from that day on: "HE CONQUERS WHO ENDURES."

LENA COVIELLO, '40

DEEMS TAYLOR, MELODIST OF AMERICA

By MARGARET BARRY, Salutatorian

Friends of the Class of 1940:

As a representative of the graduating class, I welcome you to our commencement exercises. Through four years of earnest effort we have kept ever in mind our motto, "He conquers who endures." It is our hope that our theme for this evening's program, America the Beautiful, will convey some measure of our appreciation of the privilege that has been ours, and will express our gratitude toward the great country that has opened education to all—America the Beautiful.

If you should ask at the National Institute of Arts and Letters for Joseph Taylor, you would probably be told that there is no person there by that name. There is such a person there, however, for this is the real name of the well known composer, Deems Taylor.

He was born in New York in 1885. Although music was his chief interest during his course at the Ethical Culture School and his four years at New York University, it was only one of his many activities. At the close of his college years, Deems Taylor became interested in journalism. For some time he held varied positions with periods of unemployment. He served as associate editor of the New York Tribune, Collier's Weekly, and editor of Musical America. It was with this appointment that the interests of Mr. Taylor again turned toward music. Self-taught, he received no special guidance in composing but undertook research work and experiments on his own initiative. He also served as an apprentice at the Schumann Club of New York, where he gained much practical experience which was destined to help him in later life. He became well known in 1913 when his orchestral piece, "The Siren Song," won first place in the National Federation of Musical Clubs' competition.

Many of Mr. Taylor's musical compositions are adapted from well known poems, such as "The Chambered Nautilus," by Oliver Wendell Holmes, and "The Highwayman" by Alfred Noyes. The latter was written for the MacDowell Festival, which was held at the home of the composer in Peterboro, New Hampshire, in 1914, and is one of his most popular works. By 1917 Deems Taylor was well established as one of the leading American composers. That year Mr. Taylor's orchestral suite, "Through the Looking Glass," was produced, and was one of the few compositions by contemporary Americans ever to have had repeated performances abroad.

During the '20's, Mr. Taylor's versatility was well brought out. He was busy every moment of the day, working at incidental music, pantomimes, farce comedies, and also music for many motion picture films. He prepared compositions for "A Man About Town," "Liliom," "Will Shakespeare," "Cassanova," and many others. Besides writing, he found time to deliver addresses, to prepare daily reviews for "The World," to attend conferences, and supervise rehearsals. During these busy years Mr. Taylor was honored many times by requests for compositions. The year 1924 he was asked by Walter Damrosch to prepare a piece for the New York Symphony Orchestra. The result was "Jurgen," one of his best known compositions. In 1925 a great tribute was paid the American melodist when the Metropolitan Opera Company offered to produce any opera that he might choose to write. This act showed the confidence of the American people in one of their own composers. This opera, "The King's Henchman," won the praise of some of the best critics in the world. It was such a great success that Deems Taylor was commissioned to write another opera to be produced within two years. This opera, "Peter Ibbetson," was another tribute to this interpreter of the new American music. By his accomplishments, Deems Taylor has proved that in industrial America a person adapted to any of the arts may win success in his field.

A great musician himself, Mr. Taylor has only kindly feelings for the newer phases of American music. Jazz, he feels, does not represent the finest art of American life, but it represents the restlessness and feverish activity of the American people. And as for the radio, it has been a great instrument in bringing music to the populace.

It is fitting, indeed, that among our American masters of music Deems Taylor should be chosen as one whose art achieves the beautiful rhythm of truly American music.

LILLIAN D. WALD, BEAUTIFIER OF THE SLUMS

By JEANNE HURTON, Honor Essayist

To a young handsome girl in Ohio came the call of the unfortunate. Bravely, Lillian Wald left the home of her parents for an arduous undertaking in New York city. She possessed a quality hard to account for in one who had always lived a protected life in beautiful surroundings:—zeal for service. She knew what was ahead of her—years of training, and hard, hard work with little or no reward. But she did not care; she was determined to do her bit in making her beloved country, our America, a better place in which to live.

Following her graduation from the New York Hospital Training School for Nurses, Lillian Wald went to the Juvenile Asylum on 176th Street, New York, for her first independent nursing position. A year at the Asylum was enough to convince her that this was not the place nor the way to be of service to her country. One thing was certain, she concluded from her experience at the Asylum: one could get justice for people if one fought for it. One person's single protest did count.

Next year she turned to the Women's Medical College, where she acquired valuable learning for her career as a nurse and as a crusader for public health. She was next appointed to conduct a class for immigrants in home nursing. Here, one and one-half million human beings were crowded together. The death rate was high and climbed to horrible extremes in bad tenements. Men, women, and children died because they were compelled to live in foul, overcrowded rooms, were underfed or improperly fed, were cold, stifled by the summer heat, overworked, and ignorant.

One March morning, a child came to Miss Wald on an errand of mercy. The youngster led her through dingy alleys until they came to a grim, forbidding house. Higher and higher they climbed, then at last reached their destination—two dungeon-like rooms. In the middle of one was a filthy bed where a sick woman lay. Over the anguish of that mother's face the young nurse bent with pity, and then and there resolved never to rest content until she had put an end to such pitiful spectacles as the one she now beheld.

She had a friend, Mary Brewster, who was willing to join her in her good cause. Quickly Miss Wald discovered that they were two against the gods of sickness and despair. However hopeless her plight might be, she was determined to execute her plans with the thought of our motto: He Conquers Who Endures. The young nurse spoke to those who might help, among them Jacob H. Schiff, who, hearkening to her vivid pleas, gave a building at 265 Henry Street, New York. Thus was the Henry Street Settlement born.

Her sole creed and purpose in this establishment was to remedy the tragedy of those unfortunate people's lives. But they hardly understood that it had taken philosophy to bring that young angel nurse, Miss Wald, to live among them. They knew only that she had hands that were a benediction and a skill with ointments that was like a magician's. The superstitious mothers walked up to the Settlement door and prayerfully awaited the miracles of cure which the earnest-eyed Miss Wald and her friend, Mary, gave. This Settlement seemed a gift from the All Highest—a refuge for all ills of the body and soul. This was the way they accepted Lillian Wald, as a wonder worker sent from heaven. She understood them, and in return they paid her the highest compliment within their power. They trusted her and handed her their troubles, thereby helping her to reach her goal and help her country's people.

The chief adornment of her career was her establishment of the Henry Street Nursing Service. Behind its fame was the simplest of ideas: that poor people would rather be sick in their own homes than in public institutions. After all, her objective was to put an end to slums, and this, she saw, could be accomplished only by entering the homes wherein its victims dwelt. She thought now not only in the terms of the nurse, but of a teacher and a social reformer as well.

The boys and girls in the district had no room for recreation. With the solution of this problem in mind, Miss Wald started a club for them, to help make them worthwhile citizens, not a menace to the public. But there was something else that attracted children to the Settlement, and that was the garden in the back yard. The appeal to generous-hearted benefactors that garden required before it was translated from dream to reality only Lillian Wald knew. There it was one day, a riot of color amid the frowning walls of the tenements, a breathing space of beauty to beauty-starved hearts. The children trooped in to play in its swings, breathed air untainted by the odor of the slums, and perhaps, gazing into the sky overhead, understood at last what heaven was.

The strength of the Settlement was that it dealt with the whole human being twenty-four hours a day. The Settlement, by its spiritual possession of the East Side, could effect strange cures among maladies that formerly had thriven in the darkness of suspicion and primitive minds. Within fifteen years after the House on Henry Street had opened its doors, Lillian Wald was a national figure. By 1910, she had helped to create a public opinion that looked into the abuses of our progress. Boards of health were everywhere active, wiping out slums, slowly driving young children out of sweatshops, making America more healthful and beautiful for its citizens.

In other words, the older generation within two decades has seen greater social progress than had taken place in all the previous years of the nation's existence. Now, forty years after the founding of the Henry Street Settlement, the East Side has changed vastly. On the physical plane alone there has been extraordinary improvement. At the present moment projects are afoot to establish parks and model homes, old dwellings are being, one after another, demolished. The House on Henry Street, too, may some day be gone.

And when that day dawns, Lillian Wald's dream, you may be sure, will be fulfilled; and with it the dreams of all those for whom the House had been an adventure on the road to making our country, America the Beautiful.

ROBERT FROST, SINGER OF AMERICAN LIFE

By BARBARA TEDFORD, Valdicatorian

Robert Frost, probably our greatest modern American poet puts average people and rural scenes into the natural setting of poetry. He paints the beauty of nature in New England in the colloquial speech which best fits the scenes he is describing. This simple, yet expressive, vocabulary enables all classes to appreciate the phases of American life he presents. One can easily see how his poetry reflects his own life, for much of it has been spent on New England farms.

This eminent poet was born in San Francisco in 1875 and lived there until his father's death ten years later. With his mother he then moved to Lawrence, Massachusetts, to live with his grandfather. Those few years in the West had little effect on him, though, and he has remained loyal to New England, the home of his forefathers.

It was during his high school years that Frost first determined to become a poet. After his graduation he went to Dartmouth; but the restrictions of college life irked him, and he remained only for a few months. Among the various positions he held in the next few years were teaching, factory work, and shoemaking. Probably it was due to his wife's influence that he attended Harvard for two years after his marriage in 1895. In connection with this experience it has been said of him that "College was to him a mill for being made into decent boards, but he wanted to remain a growing tree."

His continual flitting from one position to another so disturbed his grandfather that he bought Frost a farm in Derry, New Hampshire. Here, Frost enjoyed farm life, but he was not consistent enough in doing his farm chores to make money to support his growing family. When the grocer began to demand payment of his bills, Frost had to obtain a position as a normal school teacher. He appears to have been very popular as an instructor, for he was always able to get employment of this sort in spite of his informal education. He believed that richness of personality was the most valuable qualification of a teacher.

In 1912, he went to England on the proceeds from the sale of the farm. About this time, both in America and in England, poetry was experiencing a revival. While in England, Frost had his first two books, A Boy's Will and North of Boston, accepted for publication. These received immediate acclaim. English writers welcomed this verse which, in their opinion, reflected an American scene and American character more truly than other poets had done for generations.

Upon his return to America in 1915, Frost received American recognition for the first time. In a review written in The New Republic, Amy Lowell said that North of Boston was "the most American volume of poetry which had appeared in some time." Frost was now in constant demand as a college lecturer, but his popularity and fame did not upset his simple life.

Into all his poetry Frost inculcates the cadences of actual conversation and the setting and characters native to New England; into his later writings of the soil, his descriptions and interpretations are wider—typical of America. He shows not only the happiness but also the adversity of farm life. His poetry brings out the wit and shrewdness of New Englanders as typical of a greater America. To give the personal touch, Frost usually employs the dramatic monologue or dialogue form.

Although the poems may treat of some average occurrence of country life, there is usually an underlying meaning to them. For example, "The Runaway," symbolizes youth's uncertainty upon reaching maturity. Actually it is telling of a high-spirited colt. "Mending Wall" presents the contrast between a cramped outlook on life and a broad, friendly view of it. "The Road Not Taken" is indicative of the crises of life.

Frost's theory is that the proper material for literature is that which is "common in experience, uncommon in writing." He believes that to present this, one must use the words of common speech, and also one must create one's own poetic diction for modern works.

With the cheap and brutal in our so-called literature of realism, Frost has no sympathy. "I can't see," he says, "that a man must needs have his feet plowing through unhealthy mud in order to appreciate more fully the glowing splendor of the clouds. Inspiration doesn't lie in the mud; it lies in the clean and wholesome life of the ordinary man."

That he is a true singer of American life is best exemplified after a study of his poetry. Consider such lines as the following:

Part of a moon was falling down the sky.

Mending fences makes good neighbors.

Men work together, I told him from my heart,
Whether they work together or apart.

Pressed into service means pressed out of use.

My long scythe whispered and left the hay to make.

Robert Frost is a steady observer of life. He has compassion for the weak and admiration for the stronger aspects of our life. That he is a firm believer in America the Beautiful is found in his philosophy of life expressed in Birches:

"Earth's the right place for love: I don't know where it's likely to go better."

Classmates:

This evening we reach the climax of four years of endeavor. We realize that although our immediate goal—graduation—has been achieved, a more significant one faces us: the challenge to keep our America always a land of the beautiful. Particularly appropriate is our class motto in suggesting to us the pleasures and trials ahead. Let us pledge ourselves to be worthy of the faith our townspeople have in us. Our Alma Mater stands ready to lend a guiding hand as we leave her tonight. May we ever remember her noble teachings. Classmates, Ave et Vale—Hail and Farewell.

CLASS HISTORY

Since our entrance as a freshman class in 1936, the class of 1940 has seen many changes take place in respect to both scholastic and social activities at Wakefield High School. Some of our original members have left; new ones have come. Also, there have been numerous changes in the faculty. The 252 members of our class have had an important part in the studies, athletics, and social activities.

FRESHMAN YEAR

When we entered Wakefield High School in September, 1936, we numbered 354 strong. Two hundred and five of these who had attended the eighth grade in the high school building were pleasantly amused by their bewildered classmates from Greenwood, Lynnfield, and St. Joseph's School.

As a class we didn't do much our Freshman year, being just an indeterminate mass of "pupils." Of course we quickly changed into "students," but the upper classmen were scarcely aware of us because we were in the afternoon session along with the Commercial sophomores.

At the close of school in June, 1937, we had diminished to 312 persons, having lost 42 members during the course of the year.

SOPHOMORE YEAR

In September, 1937, we returned to school again as sophomores. Everything was ready for us to plunge right in and work. Our auditorium had been renovated with the seats repainted or replaced.

A short time later Miss Louise Sheldon, librarian of the high school library, formed the Library Club with the purpose of teaching the members the fundamentals of library work. One person from each homeroom was eligible for membership.

October 11, 1937, came and Previews of Progress was presented to the Wakefield High School students. It was produced by General Motors, but it was not an automobile show. Its purpose was to take the audience behind the scenes so that they might see the ingenious devices and methods utilized in bringing about the progress of the world in which we live.

Our Wakefield High boys took to the ice at last, and hockey was added to the Wakefield High School sports. Mr. Gallop, our chemistry teacher, took a portion of the basketball training, while Mr. Shellenberger devoted three afternoons a week to coaching the hockey players.

To continue in our field of sports, on February 19, 1938, the Wakefield High School faculty played the Melrose High School faculty in basketball. Our faculty lost 54-28. As a basketball game it was one of the best wrestling matches that Wakefield had ever seen. Our faculty played to help our football team obtain sweaters. On March 9, 1938, our faculty played a return game with Melrose. This time they redeemed themselves by winning, 27-26.

Our regular basketball team rated the second highest scoring team in the state. John Conroy was the first freshman to be elected captain of the first team in basketball.

An airplane landed on Lake Quannapowitt to take the mail in '38 style. The students of the Wakefield High School were allowed to go to the lake and view the airplane's much-delayed landing and take-off.

Soon the old problem of having an addition to our high school came up again, when the State Supervisor of Secondary Education criticized our double-session plan. He said that every local citizen should fight for an addition.

Again came the end of another school year and with it the services of Miss Mary Butler, our popular young French teacher, who left the faculty to be married.

JUNIOR YEAR

On September 21, 1938, one of the worst hurricanes New England has ever known caused much devastation. I am sure none of us will soon forget this storm or the havoc raised by it. However, it did one kind deed by giving us several days from school.

Then came our Junior Class assembly on October 6, 1938, at which the following class officers presided: Gardner Burke, president; Anne Twitcheil, vice-president; Christine Morgan, secretary; Jeanne Hurton, treasurer. We chose blue and silver as our class colors and the motto, "He conquers who endures."

An extraordinary, illustrated lecture on the stars, sun, moon, and planets, and also on the origin and use of astronomer's instruments was given on the 7th of October.

On the 20th we attended another lecture, this time by a blind man who told us of his faithful companion, a collie dog, which he himself had trained.

Our football dance, which was run for the benefit of the injury fund, was held on November 2, 1938.

On the 11th a native of India presented an interesting lecture on his mother land.

On November 28, 1938, a custom was started which many of us will not soon forget for various reasons. This custom is known as "parents' night." At this time our parents are cordially invited to visit our teachers and discuss our "scholastic standing."

Our football team dined at a turkey banquet on December 20. At this time "Zipper" Bliss was chosen captain of the team for the next year.

On December 21, 1938, a concert of Christmas music was given by the combined glee clubs.

Our first classes in baton twirling were started on January 19, 1939.

For the girls the hardest regulation made was the banning of bracelet bells.

Our Junior Prom was held on April 16, 1939 in the form of a visit from Ferdinand the Bull.

Also during our junior year the basketball team made a memorable record by winning the Middlesex League Cup after five years. Then, of course you remember "Victory Night" at the Wakefield Theatre in honor of the occasion.

Mr. Fusco became a member of our faculty to teach Italian and French and to aid in teaching athletics. We lost his services at the end of the year when he left to accept another position in Arlington.

Perhaps a few of you remember about heating hydrochloric acid and dirt in Mr. Preble's chemistry class. Someone outdoors seeing the fumes around the windows and roof pulled in a fire alarm, causing a fire drill for many delighted "students."

The greatest catastrophe, however, was when Miss Reed discovered a very weak chair in her room.

Among our prominent classmates were "Zipper" Bliss and Norma Brady who were voted the junior boy and girl most popular with the senior class. Mr. Bliss was also a regular member of our football team. Norma Brady and Barbara Shaw were cheerleaders.

SENIOR YEAR

When we, the class of 1940, returned to Wakefield High for our final year, we found facing us an international situation which threatened to influence directly the course of all our lives.

But we were not so much concerned with this problem as the pros and cons of the single session which was just instituted. But as debates on this became trite and boresome, we turned our interest to the election of class officers. Those who received the support of the majority in the election were: President, "Zipper" Bliss; vice-president, Anne Twitchell; secretary, Christine Morgan; treasurer, James Maloney.

When the hubbub of voting died down our attention was next directed towards the printing of an un-official school paper. Much speculation was traveling about school as to whether the now famous "Mercury" would continue. But after its first issue it died a calm death, and soon after came the sanctioned official organ of the school, "The Lookout."

Becoming used to seeing this paper in the hallways, we began to feel that no excitement existed any longer in Wakefield High. Then along came the Football Dance, the Senior Class Play, The Hi-Y Dance, and we were left breathless. Fortunately the Christmas vacation appeared just around the corner. This gave us time to recuperate.

However, after we returned, we faced the pleasant prospect of a Senior Class Party. Special interest was attached to this party because it was the first time that Seniors were allowed to invite outside guests. The results were so favorable that this same favor was extended to the Junior Prom. And there was another pleasant surprise that awaited us on our return from the Christmas holidays. Whereas the single session formerly consisted of eight periods it was now cut to seven.

Other radical changes soon appeared. Gymnasium work was dropped for the rest of the year and the gymnasium was used as a lunching place for the boys. Also most of the study periods were held in the auditorium. The lap boards for the auditorium and the chairs for the gymnasium were made by the boys in the woodwork department. There was talk of a third staircase to be constructed in the auditorium, but no definite conclusion on this question has yet been reached.

Around March, a Student Council was instigated. Two officers were chosen from each senior and junior homeroom, and one from the sophomore. No freshmen were represented. Another item of progress was the espousal of the "socials" by our principal. These were to be afternoon dances given monthly for the purpose of learning how to dance and for getting the pupils to acquaint themselves with one another.

During the year our Glee Clubs have been active. The Boys' Glee Club has given four successful concerts: One at the Y. M. C. A., and a second, a joint broadcast with the Girls' Glee Club, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Both of these were held at Christmas time. A third concert was given before the Kosmos Club on March 21st, and the fourth, assisting the band and orchestra, was held on April 6th. The Girls' Glee Club, under the leadership of Elizabeth Beane as president, attempted an energetic program to produce the operetta, "Mikado." It was a huge success in which Iva Andrews and Herbert Allyn played leading roles.

Our two clubs, the girls' Inter Nos, and the boys' Hi-Y, have been very active throughout the year. These two clubs take care of the social-moral aspect of the student activities, and have done remarkable work.

The Inter Nos, sponsored by Miss Gilmore, has been very ably led by one of our honor students, Jeanne Hurton. Speakers have addressed the girls on diverse topics of interest, and the girls have arranged parties for their mothers and another for the Hi-Y boys, both of which aimed to give the girls poise and instruction on how to entertain properly both their elders and people of their own age.

The Hi-Y Club has been most fortunate indeed to have had a man such as Mr. Lindsay of the Y. M. C. A. as their sponsor. Through the efforts of their president, Ted Bachelder, and advised by Mr. Lindsay, the boys have carried out a well-rounded program, the leading aim of which has been occupational and social guidance. Representatives from many professions and colleges have addressed them on occupations, and the worthwhileness of college, and leaders of social organizations have discussed social problems with them. Two special events have given the boys tremendous satisfaction in their achievements. The first was a Christmas party given to a large group of needy children. The second was that Wakefield had the privilege of playing host to the leaders of the Hi-Y sectional conference held this year at Wakefield.

All in all, the achievements of the senior year of the Class of 1940 can be termed distinctive, outstanding, and progressive. During our final year, 1939-1940, we have accomplished more in the way of reform and progress than any other classes of the past few years. We have established a school paper on a firm basis. We have proved our maturity by holding our Senior Party with outside guests, and have set a model for the Junior Prom. We have organized a Student Council as well.

By doing these things, we are following and have kept faith with our motto, HE CONQUERS WHO ENDURES.

Well, well! Our class members of 1940 have certainly turned to all phases of work and professions. Almost all are successful, too!

Take Nicholas Alleca, for instance; right out of high school into a job! He's still working at it, too, in Boston.

Burton Allison went to college and was awarded a degree. Consequently, he, too, is unusually successful. Remember "Wingsie" Allyn? Well, he's in business for himself now. He's selling automobiles that can be converted into airplanes. He has James Bradstreet as one of his chief draftsmen.

Martha Allyn and Rose Calvo went to the Fanny Farmer School and they are now full fledged dietitians. We hear that Marjorie Cheever took this same course and she is now a chief adviser in a Boston hotel.

You remember Leo Amirault? He's just written a book called "How to Work and Like It." He dedicated it to Joseph Benoit. Joseph, by the way, is a test man for Ford motor cars.

Bernard Berman is in business for himself now and owns a huge store in Wakefield. He employed Gardner Burke as an assistant and Gretchen Baum as his secretary.

Gertrude Anderson and Dorothy Ash are employed by the Wakefield Trust Company. Gertrude always loved to handle money!

Our prophecy for Iva Andrews is the best dressed actress of 1945; orchids and all!

Betty Atwell is a model for Conrad's, Boston, but she is still attending school. Amelia Angelina is also employed in Conrad's adjustment department.

Edward Bachelder obtained a position with the Bell Telephone Service. He said he'd seen a classmate employed there as operator. The head operator was Phyllis Baker, who continually called: M A X, 0 0 0. Clayton Atchinson was one of the chief executives there, and we understand he's going to be sent to Kansas on an important investigation.

Margaret Barry and Elizabeth Beane are both employed in a swanky music store on Boylston Street, Boston. They told me that Winona Blanchard is always coming to the store and buying up all the latest swing records. Winona, you see, wants to be a professional dancer.

Vernon Bliss became the publicity manager for the renowned dancer, Thomas Boland. "Tommy" is hailed by almost every night club on Broadway. He employs Norma Boyce to handle his correspondence, fan-mail, and appointments.

Norma Brady, one of our most popular classmates, worked at Best and Company in Boston. She modeled there for a while, but now she's the buyer for suits and dresses. It is rumored that she is contemplating marriage.

John Brockbank decided to go in for politics, as inspired by our Senior Play, and has Frank Ciciarella busy making continual political speeches for him. Lena Coviello, Dorice Crosby, and Mary Collucello are some of his high-paid newspaper campaignists.

Donald Brown went to South America, to see how it differed from this continent. Donald Chisholm is his chauffeur. Lucky fellow!

Patricia Burditt is now working at occupational therapy under the highly instructive guidance of Elinor Clarke.

On the Cunard Liner, Datonia, that sailed for Europe, were Allan Burnell, who is traveling for pleasure; Helen Ciani, who will meet her aunt in France; and Vincent Canino, who is to enter the U. S. foreign accounting service. He will be stationed in Switzerland.

Jane Carter, it is said, may soon sail to Bermuda to forget her recent love affair. William Carter, who is employed by the White Star Line in Boston, said he sold her a ticket one week ago. Another classmate, Edward Chrisfield, escorted her over one of the boats on an inspection tour, so we think she's really going on a voyage.

Charles and James Cerretani went in for forestry, and are now stationed in Bretton Woods, New Hampshire. Bertha Climo was reported to have been seen leading a group of 4-H enthusiasts through the Bretton Reservation. Lorraine Corbett and Muriel Daley were the only two recognized by the foresters in the group.

Did you know that Betty Copeland and Elinor Cronin became enthusiastic horticulturists? They received their early training from a now retired W. H. S. teacher!

For distinguished services as a nurse, Charlotte Dodge just received an honorary degree. They say that Dorothy Chandler may fill the vacancy in the hospital staff, as Charlotte is leaving to be married. Robert Cheever is an ambulance driver at this same hospital.

John Colannino is teaching mathematics at a night school where a recent scholarship was awarded to Virginia Doucette.

Grace Duane and Irene Dill are singing waitresses at a Swiss restaurant in Boston! Irene always could yodel, and my! how Grace could sing! We hear the place is crowded every night.

Samuel Confalone and Gerald Cronin formed a partnership and now operate a very fancy delicatessen, here in Wakefield. Arthur DeCecca has charge of the fleet of trucks that the store employs. You should try their cold meats and sauerkraut!

Leonard Conway became a member of the school board in Wakefield, while Barbara Davis became the physical instructor. It is said that she is leaving, however, to conduct important classes in Boston, so her place will be temporarily filled by her sister, Nancy Davis.

George DeRoche became a policeman on the Boston police force. The papers say that the other day he arrested Ruth Coombs for speeding along Riverside Drive. Ruth explained that she hated seeing the "parkers." She is one of a group of women working to prevent this sort of thing.

Helen Cook and Winifred Corbett went to a school of hat designing in Boston, and are now making some exclusive creations for Madame Barry of Newbury Street.

Genevieve Daley and Mary Corindia own a small jewelry shop in Malden, to which many of the best people go. They said that Barbara Doore and a handsome doctor were in a few days ago, looking at diamond rings. Well, well!

Leo Curran and Leo Dunbeck work in a publishing house in Boston. It seems that a new branch is to be opened in Philadelphia, and these fellows are to be sent there as managers. Quite a chance!

Elizabeth DeCecca now owns a duck farm! She always adored ducks you know! She also has a small restaurant in the country, managed for her by Arthur D'Angelo. Elizabeth recently ran an advertisement in the paper for waitresses, and she had the good luck to obtain three of her old classmates. Who were they? Nancy Costantino, Asenath Curley, and Gloria Cusato. We understand that these girls are extremely well paid, as Elizabeth is more than comfortably well off! Her duck sandwiches are famous!

Well, the papers have told us of late that Elizabeth Edson has just started out to tour the country by automobile. She always loved to travel!

A new jewelry store has just opened up in Boston—Carl & Carlton Elliott's. They have a wonderful stock, too. One of their chief saleswomen is Florence Evangelista. They've sent one of their buyers, Jean Falls, traveling abroad.

Lloyd Farwell turned out to be a New York fashion model. It's also rumored he may sponsor "The Green Hornet."

Jeanette Fay and Marilyn Gascoigne are successful newspaper women and are now studying journalism.

Some of the very successful members of our class who are working for a prominent insurance company are Geraldine Findlay, Katherine Finn, and Mary Joyce.

Lloyd Fitzpatrick is working in Philadelphia as an engineer, and Robert Gerard is an engineer in Chicago.

Frances Flynn is an instructor of cooking in a New Hampshire hotel, and nearby is a large farm owned by Robert Hogg.

Speaking of farms and the like, did you hear about Dick Foss? Well, he bought a ranch in Texas, where he draws to his heart's content.

Julia Fossett owns a fashionable shop in Boston, where exclusive gowns are sold. In her beauty department are employed Nancy Guiliano, Rosalie Kuklinsky, and Florence Lannon. Julia has Kay Alward as one of her many models. Barbara Johnson designs many of the gowns for Julia; they're gorgeous, too!

Margarita Galluci, Mary Hanright, and Virginia Kirby entered the nursing profession. As for instructors we have Betty Jane Pate, while Carol White and Barbara Maxwell are soon to receive doctor's degrees.

Betty Galvin, Jane Lang, and Jeanne Whitney now own a fashionable girls' school on Long Island. It is rumored, though, that Betty is soon to be married.

Speaking of marriages, did you know Ann Gibson married two years after graduation? Well, she did! She finally married an "Ivory Soap" salesman.

As for those classmates in the "limelight," there's James Garbenis—a champion figure skater; Graydon Grinnell—a famous public orator; Joseph Lopes with his swing band; Dick McGrail—coach for the Notre Dame freshmen, and Charlie McManuis—our million-dollar playboy. There's also Karmin Gregory, who is called by the newspaper, "The Leisure Bachelor of Beacon Hill."

Those of our class who have followed the teaching profession are Barbara Malcolm, and Julie Leone. It is said that Barbara Malcolm is soon to be married, and her place will be filled by Marjorie Harris.

Elsie Harper is now a news reporter on the New York Times. It is said that she is one of the highest paid reporters of the staff.

There seem to be many of our classmates traveling abroad. These include Horace Hawks, Barbara Tedford, James Maguire, and Hedley Ash.

Many of our members are traveling our coast-line, having joined the coast guard, and received high ranks. Among them are David Altieri, Frank Bailey, Harold Inman, and Guido Luciano.

James Hogg is in the real estate business, and has a fancy for many stenographers and workers. Those in his employ are Mary Luciano, Octavia Zwicker, and Alice Kupiec.

Dorothy Hoyt, Louise Moncrief, and Audrey Johnston own a prosperous hair dressing establishment in Boston. Marriage is beckoning to Louise, however; good luck "Art."

Sarah Altieri and Martha Bears became nurses. Sarah will also marry soon—so a fortune teller said—and Martha is going to specialize in research.

Jane Holden has just written a Broadway play, in which Gladys Kitchenman will try for a part. Leo Bisso and Joe Lopes' swing band formed a partnership and may be seen in this play.

Vernon Hoyt, Richard Tyacke, and Charles Johnson became plane pilots, while Christine Morgan and Jeanne Hurton became transport hostesses, and they prove very popular with the passengers.

Jane Hurley and Catherine Hurton are now librarians in Boston. The "third Hurton," Thomas, had his life's dream fulfilled, as he now owns a hook and ladder.

Robert Jackman is a genuine sports fan, so he studied to be a news commentator. He got too excited at this, however, so now he's a ski instructor and is teaching Adelaide Johnson and Ruth Jolliffe, who pay him good money and take much time. These two girls are traveling.

David Johnson is a landscape gardener, and is laying out a tremendous garden on the estate of Professor Melville Kahn of Brookline.

David's brother, Joseph Johnson, is now a war correspondent to Europe. He works often with Priscilla Johnson, who is with the Federal Finger-Print Bureau in Washington.

Robert Kanchuga has the largest "painless dentistry" office in New York, and has Joan Leach in his employ as his head nurse.

John Lasky owns an optical firm these days, and his chief assistant is Mildred Kelloway.

Stasia Krol and Adelaide Kulacz are also on the staff of Lasky's Optical Firm, though it is rumored that both these girls will soon be married and will resign.

Mary Laurino is now in Virginia at an exclusive hotel as a director, and Eleanor Lefave is frequently the vocalist there.

Edward Leichner has become so important in mechanics that he has Alice Luken as his personal secretary.

Florence Leman found her success in commercial art and has Helen MacConney handle her work as a secretary and agent.

Evelyn MacDonald and Gwendolyn MacLaren are now teachers of physical education at a college in western Massachusetts.

James Maloney and Jeanette Mansfield are in New York where they are studying to be buyers, according to the New York Times.

Dominic Martino is an athlete of great fame, and we hear that he's training Charles Mitchell. For just what, we don't know. A lot of us think that Charles will eventually be a horticulturist.

Dorothy MacLaughlin and Josephine Minardi followed the teaching profession, having first attended a famous teachers' college.

John McCarthy has just written a novel called, "Vanished with the Breeze." We hear that it's being dedicated to Lorette Meuse.

We haven't heard too much of Joan McGonagle, other than she is very happy in her recent marriage. Edward Melonson, however, is still a bachelor. He prefers to "Live alone and like it."

John Migliore has recently been accepted by the Lasky Optical Company for a very fine position.

Priscilla Morrison has opened a dating bureau in New York. Escorts are provided inexpensively, and are guaranteed to be good dancers.

Jean Mosher, who played her violin in our school orchestra, is now playing in the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Nelson Muise is head accountant in one of Boston's leading firms.

James Murphy is the manager of one of the largest Newberry Stores in the state of New York.

Well, as we all expected, Lorraine Murphy didn't follow any other career than that of housewife, under the supervision of her husband, Mr. Glidden.

Dorothy Muse now runs an exclusive dress shoppe in Hollywood, California. Marjorie Muse works in the same store as a clerk.

Arax Nahigyan is teaching underprivileged children in Mexico. She must like the heat.

Alvina Nardone is working in Hovey's as the head office manager. Helen Worters is head typist in the same firm.

A number of our former classmates have become industrious secretaries. Evelyn Nesbitt is a secretary in an exclusive girls' school in Detroit. Dorothy Nickerson holds a position in the same school. Helen Walsh was recently elected to the governor's staff of secretaries.

Katherine O'Donnell is now a prominent figure in the Woolworth Store in New York.

Doris Oliver has become a well-known actress of the New York stage. Wayne Schumann is also a star of the New York stage, and it is rumored that these two will become one before many more months have passed.

Lewis Pasquale owns and operates a large garage in Wakefield. He has as his chief mechanic, Victor Pratola.

Anna Patch is now teaching shorthand in our dear Alma Mater.

Geraldine Peck became an author and her latest best seller is a book called "What Every Quiet Person Should Know."

Laura Perkins is also writing a book called "School Days."

Ruth Peterson is teaching harmony at the New England Conservatory of Music.

Richard Porter is a salesman for a leading firm and has been seen of late in the old home town.

Ethelyn Ramsdell has just said "I do," to some charming young man, and is going to settle down in her home town.

Herbert Randall is following in his mother's footsteps, and now owns a large restaurant in Boston, where he is the head chef.

Dorothea Reams is a model for hairdressers, and her picture is seen frequently in the magazines featuring the latest coiffures.

Frank Reid has just won a medal for the best marksmanship in the country.

Mary Alice Rice is now touring the country on money she has inherited from a wealthy companion.

Alfred Roberto is coach of the boxing teams at one of the country's leading Universities.

Donald Rockwell, running for a public office, is giving speeches at every conceivable public place. He belongs to the "G. A. B." Political Party.

Shirley Rutledge has obtained great fame as a commercial artist, but it is believed that she will soon give up her career to wed one of our former athletes.

Theresa Saunders and Helen Schefisch are now manufacturing a new type of hair curlers. Walter Schlotterbeck is the business manager of the firm, and Eleanor Schreider supplies the tin for the curlers.

Ruth Schroeder is the professional model whose picture may be seen adorning many of our magazine covers.

Edward Seabury has become the manager of a local news office. Ed supplies all of his boys with motorcycles in order to insure prompt and efficient service.

Harold Sederquest is now coaching a track team in a leading western college. His cousin, Harry Sederquest, coaches the hockey team at the same place.

Barbara Shaw is now president of a club, and is kept busy arranging the affairs that the club and others have. She always liked to supervise.

Richard Sheaff's name may now be seen in two places: on a little card over the doorbell of a white cottage, and on the glass door of a large downtown office.

Charles Simpson is a famous sports announcer, and he deals with anything from football to ping pong.

Robert Smallwood and Harold Starkman are working in a secluded spot where they claim they have invented a machine that will revolutionize the world. Only time will tell.

Helen Smith is now the head nurse at one of the state's leading hospitals.

Morris Stoddard's picture is often in "Esquire" featuring what the well-dressed man is wearing. He writes a love-lorn column on the side.

Mason Strong now has his own music published and he plays his trumpet in a leading orchestra.

John Sullivan is the manager of a large Grant Store in New York.

Ruth Temple's works of art may be seen in the Boston Art Museum, where they are being featured.

John Thibodeau now pilots a commercial plane between New York and Boston.

Seward Thresher is playing with the Boston Bruins, National champions.

Henry Tiberio is now known as "Radio's Own Singing Cowboy," and he composes all his own songs.

Elizabeth True is a very successful saleswoman for a prominent cookie firm.

Harry True is very much interested in Diesel engines, and he is getting quite a few revolutionary ideas.

Anne Twitchell was chosen carnival queen at Dartmouth, and is now considering a movie contract which she has been offered on the strength of her elections.

Dante Volpe is coaching football at our dear Alma Mater, and he still arranges yearly games with the alumni of Wakefield High School, Class of '40.

Catherine Walsh and Alice Woodhull have perfected a new beauty cream, which is expected to be on the market soon.

Eleanor Waterhouse is now making a personal tour and is expected to sing in the Wakefield Theatre the latter part of the year.

Charlotte Williams is very much interested in Latin, and is teaching that subject at Simmons College.

George Winters is a prominent bachelor no more but instead has been a married man for three years, and is a leading selectman in Wakefield.

Barbara Woodward is now a secretary in a paper office in Melrose.

Gloria Worters has opened an exclusive boarding house in Greenwood.

Robert Travis is head of a machine school for boys in Detroit.

Well, I guess that takes care of all those who graduated in the Class of '40. Everyone will have to agree that we had a wonderful class and we're sure that all the graduates will go far in their chosen professions.

THE CLASS POEM

By JANE LANG, 1940

This day we pledge our lives anew
In service to mankind.
Our standard shows in colors true
The aims of steadfast minds.

May fortune shine on this fair class,
Success that all may know.
A kindly share of all that's best,
And strength that still will grow.

Thus sing we for the victory.
And all that it assures.
Within our hearts comes forth the cry,
"HE CONQUERS WHO ENDURES."
